

THE JOURNEY
OF
JOHN GILPIN,

*Linen-Draper, and Captain in the City
Train-Bands;*

Relating how he went farther than he intended, and came home safe at last.

JOHN GILPIN'S JOURNEY.

To the Tune of "Chevy Chase."

JOHN GILPIN was a citizen
Of credit and renown;
A Train-band Captain eke was he
Of famous London town.

John Gilpin's spouse said to her dear—
" Though wedded we have been
" These twice ten tedious years, yet we
" No holiday have seen.

" To-morrow is our wedding-day,
" And we will then repair
" Unto the Bell, at Edmonton
" All in a chaise and pair.

„ My sister, and my sister's child,
" Myself, and children three,
" Will fill the chaise, so you must ride
" On horseback, after we."

He soon reply'd—" I do admire
" Of women-kind but one;
" And you are she, my dearest dear,
" Therefore it shall be done:

" I am a Linen draper bold,
" As all the world does know;
" And my good friend, the Callender,
" Will lend his horse to go."

Quoth, Mrs Gilpin,—" That's well said,
" And for that wine is dear,
" We will be furnish'd with our own,
" Which is so bright and clear."

John Gilpin kiss'd his loving wife,
O'erjoy'd was he to find,
That though on pleasure she was bent,
She had a frugal mind.

The morning came, the chaise was brought,
 But yet was not allow'd
 To drive up to the door, lest all
 Should say that she was proud.

So three doors off the chaise was staid,
 Where they did all get in,
 Six precious souls, and all agog
 To dash through thick and thin.

Smack went the whip, round went the wheels,
 Were never folks so glad;
 The stones did rattle underneath,
 As if Cheapside were mad.

John Gilpin, at his horse's side,
 Seiz'd fast the flowing mane,
 And up he got in haste to ride,
 But soon came down again.

For saddle-tree scarce reach'd had he,
 His journey to begin,
 When turning round his face, he saw
 Three customers come in.

So down he came, for loss of time,
 Although it griev'd him fore;
 Yet loss of pence, full well he knew,
 Would grieve him still much more.

'Twas long before the customers
 Were suited to their mind,
 When Betty scream'd into his ears—
 "The wine is left behind!"

"Good lack!" quoth he, "yet bring it me,
 "My leathern belt likewise,
 "In which I bear my trusty sword
 "When I do exercise."

Now Mrs Gilpin—careful soul!—
 Had two stone bottles found,
 To hold the liquor which she lov'd,
 And keep in safe and sound.

Each

Each bottle had two curling ears,
Through which the belt he drew;
He hung one bottle on each side,
To make his balance true.

Then over all, that he might be
Equip'd from top to toe,
His long red cloak, well brush'd and neat,
He manfully did throw.

Now see him mounted once again
Upon his nimble steed,
Full slowly-pacing o'er the stones,
With caution and good heed.

But finding soon a smoother road
Beneath his well-shod feet,
The snorting beast began to trot,
Which gail'd him in his seat.

"So, fair and softly," John did cry,
But John he cry'd in vain;
The trot became a gallop soon,
In spite of curb or rein.

So stooping down, as he needs must,
Who cannot sit upright,
He grasp'd the mane with both his hands,
And eke with all his might.

Away went Gilpin, neck or nought,
Away went hat and wig;
He little dreamt, when he set out,
Of running such a rig.

The horse, who never had before
Been handled in this kind,
Affrighted fled, and, as he flew,
Left all the world behind.

The wind did blow, the cloak did fly,
Like streamer long and gay;
Till loop and button failing both,
At last it flew away.

Then might all people well discern
The bottles he had slung:
A bottle swinging at each side,
As has been said or sung.

The dogs did bark, the children scream'd,
Up flew the windows all;
And every soul cry'd out, "Well done!"
As loud as he could bawl.

Away went Gilpin—who but he!
His fame soon spread around—
"He carries weight!—he rides a race!—
" 'Tis for a thousand pound!"

And still as fast as he drew near,
'Twas wonderful to view,
How in a trice, the turnpike-men
Their gates wide open threw.

And now as he went bowing down
His reeking head full low,
The bottles twain behind his back
Were shatter'd at a blow.

Down ran the wine into the road,
Most piteous to be seen,
And made his horse's flanks to smoke,
As he had basted been.

But still he seem'd to carry weight,
With leathern girdle brac'd;
For still the bottle necks were left
Both dangling at his waist.

Thus all through merry Islington
These gambols he did play,
And till he came unto the Wash
Of Edmonton so gay.

And there he threw the wash about
On both sides of the way;
Just like unto a trundling mop,
Or a wild-goose at play.

At Edmonton his loving wife
From the balcony spy'd,
Her tender husband, wond'ring much
To see how he did ride.

"Stop,

" Stop, stop, John Gilpin! here's the house!
 They all at once did cry;
 " The dinner waits, and we are tir'd!"
 Said Gilpin—" So am I!"

But ah! his horse was not a whit
 Inclined to tarry there;
 For why?—his owner had a house
 Full ten miles off, at Ware.

So like an arrow swift he flew
 Shot by an archer strong;
 So did he fly—which brings me to
 The middle of my song.

Away went Gilpin, out of breath,
 And sore against his will,
 Till at his friend's, the Callender's,
 His horse at last stood still.

The Callender, surpriz'd to see
 His friend in such a trim,
 Laid down his pipe, flew to the gate,
 And thus accotled him—

" What news? what news? the tidings tell;
 " Make haste, and tell me all!
 " Say, why bare-headed you are come,
 " Or why you come at all?"

Now Gilpin had a pleasant wit,
 And lov'd a timely joke;
 And thus unto the Callender
 In merry strains he spoke—

" I came because your horse would come;
 " And, if I well forebode,
 " My hat and wig will soon be here;
 " They are upon the road."

The Callender, right glad to find
 His friend in merry pin,
 Return'd him not a single word,
 But to the house went in.

Whence

Whence strait he came with hat and wig,
 A wig that droop'd behind,
 A hat not much the worse for wear:
 Each comely in its kind.

He held them up; and, in his turn
 Thus shew'd his ready wit—
 " My head is twice as big as your's,
 " They therefore needs must fit.

" But let me scrape the dirt away
 " That hangs about your face;
 " And stop and eat—for well you may
 " Be in a hungry case!"

Said John—" It is my wedding-day;
 " And folks would gape and stare,
 " If wife should dine at Edmonton,
 " And I should dine Ware."

Then, speaking to his horse, he said,
 " I am in haste to dine;
 " 'Twas for your pleasure you came here,
 " You shall go back for mine."

Ah! luckless word and bootless boast,
 For which he paid full dear;
 For, while he spoke, a braying ass
 Did sing most loud and clear.

Whereat his horse did snort as if
 He heard a lion roar;
 And gallopp'd off with all his might,
 As he had done before.

Away went Gilpin—and away
 Went Gilpin's hat and wig;
 He lost them sooner than the first:
 For why?—they were too big.

Now Gilpin's wife, when she had seen
 Her husband posting down
 Into the country far away,
 She pull'd out half a crown:

And

And thus unto the youth she said
 That drove them to the Bell,
 "This shall be your's, when you bring back
 "My husband safe and well."

The youth did ride, and soon they met;
 He try'd to stop John's horse
 By seizing fast the flowing rein,
 But only made things worse.

For, not performing what he meant,
 And gladly would have done,
 He thereby frighten'd Gilpin's horse,
 And made him faster run,

Away went Gilpin—and away
 Went post-boy at his heels;
 The best-boy's horse right glad to miss
 The lumber of the wheels.

Five Gentlemen upon the road,
 Thus seeing Gilpin fly,
 With post-boy scamp'ring in the rear,
 Soon rais'd the hue-and-cry:

"Stop thief!—stop thief!—a highwayman!"
 Not one of them was mute;
 So they and all that pass'd that way,
 Soon join'd in the pursuit.

But all the turnpike-gates again
 Flew open in short space;
 The men still thinking as before,
 That Gilpin rode a race:

And so he did, and won it too,
 For he got first to town;
 For stopp'd till where he first got up,
 He did again get down.

Now let us sing—"long live the king;"
 "And Gilpin long live he:"
 "And when he next does ride abroad,
 "May I be there to see!"
